I was writing this Perl-fiddle yesterday and it quite suddenly started to spit out all sorts of errors. I tried playing with the shebang line but it still started spewing out errors. "base exception" So, I figured that the fault is in the program I am running. So then, I tried using use die "Aborting"; and now the entire program gets aborted and the error log is blank. So, my question is, can I programatically catch any exceptions thrown? For example, can I write a subroutine that catches the "base exception" and calls on that? A: The exception thrown by die has an optional message parameter that you can access: my $e = eval { die }; say $@; This is the top of the exception stack. You can get deeper in to the exception object with the method Backtrace say $e->{Backtrace}; Q: Error updating a field in a Google form with Google Apps Script I have a Google form that I'm trying to make easier to edit. I think it's smarter to display some data that doesn't necessarily belong to the form's question (in this case a list of suggestions) but at the same time, I don't want to edit the form itself but only the list displayed. To do so, I have added to my form this code: function onSubmit(e) { var ss = SpreadsheetApp.getActiveSpreadsheet(); var sheet = ss.getActiveSheet(); var data = form.getValues(); var suggestion = data[0][7]; var row = sheet.getLastRow() + 1; var column = sheet.getLastColumn(); var source = sheet.getRange(row, 4, 1, 2).getValues(); var dest = sheet.getRange(row, 3, 1, 2); dest.setValues([suggestion]) } 6d1f23a050
